VALUEING CITY PROPERTY

COMPLEX PROBLEMS BEFORE JEF-FERSON AND ASSISTANTS.

Attempt Will Be Made to Equalize Values as Nearly as Possible-Real-Estate News.

A force of deputy assessors under Michael Jefferson, township assessor, will begin Wednesday morning to appraise the property of citizens of Center township, and from their appraisement it is expected that a much heavier valuation of personal property will be put upon the tax duplicates for the coming year. The appraisement of real estate will be made in the office of the township assessor and most of that work has already been done. The appraisement of real estate will be more of an equalization of values than anything else. Much property in the township has been assessed at an unfair valuation for some time, while other property has escaped small assessment when its value was much greater. The assessor, following the plan adopted by the assessors of the entire county, will see that no property is assessed for more than it is really worth, all of it will be given fair consideration. Much North Side property is worth three times the appraisement of it now on the platbooks of the assessor. This property is selling every day for much more money than would be indicated by the amount of taxes collected from its owners.

On the South Side, particularly in that portion which was taxed several years ago on the belief that the business section of city growing in its direction would greatly enhance its value, the appraisements will be reduced somewhat. Much of this property is assessed at a valuation per front foot now that could not be obtained for it in a forced sale.

ASSESSING IMPROVEMENTS. This year the appraisement of improvements on real estate will be made. Every four years the improvements are assessed and the taxes on them for the years which they escaped without an assessment is made up in back taxes. The deputies who will be intrusted with the appraisement of the improvements will be carefully selected by ficiently well acquainted with building values to fix a just valuation on the property. A large sum will be added to the tax duplicate by the appraisements made of many large buildings erected in the city during the last four years. The New Claypool Hotel is probably the largest of these, althan $100,000 that will be appraised. othing extraordinary in prices obtained
